ANNUAL TOUR OF COLORED PEOPLE

Many Sections Bring Baltimore's Colored Residents by the Thousands. No Trouble on the Trains Spend Day on Field.

Sixty two hundred and fifty Baltimore negroes visited Gettysburg to-day on their annual September excursion and literally overran the town and portions of the battlefield which they visited.

The sections carried from 674 as the lowest number to 1314 on the heaviest train. The last three sections were delayed east of town by the derailment of a large Western Maryland engine which picked a switch.

Starting at 9:30 o'clock the first of the eight special trains arrived here and emptied over six hundred of the negroes on Carlisle street. The customary concourse of automobiles and vehicles was on hand to transport the Baltimoreans and they were soon on their way to the battlefield. Not all went to Little Round Top as they did in former years, however, for the attractions of the Springs Hotel had been called to their attention and many teams took hundreds of the colored people west of town for a day of enjoyment.

Gettysburg was prepared for the colored folk to-day. Watermelons by the carload were on hand and transported to the places where the visitors expected to find the most enjoyment. Other forms of refreshment were to be had and the souvenir people had displayed the goods that would appeal most to the special desires of the excursionists. It remained, however, for the negroes themselves to produce the ever-present crab men and all day long the cry of "crabs and crab cakes" could be heard about town, the vendors not confining their activities to their own people but attempting to sell to Gettysburgians also.

Railroad people report that there was little disorder on the trains coming here. There was boisterous conduct, singing and a general good time, it is said, but none of the "carrying on" which has frequently caused trouble on previous excursions. The presence of officers on every train largely contributed to their good behavior, it is thought, and the railroad anticipated little trouble in the town or on the battlefield.

The excursion is run annually by the colored Grand Army posts of Baltimore and proves quite a profitable business proposition, a return of fifteen per cent on all receipts from the sale of tickets being turned over to the committee in charge.

TROLLEY ACCIDENT

Three Negroes Hurt in Rear End Collision on Trolley.

Three negro excursionists were slightly hurt in a trolley accident this afternoon near the Redding farm on the Emmitsburg Road. They were Helen Wheeler, 26 years of age, William Jackson and James Robinson. The Wheeler woman was thrown from the car, bruising her body but sustaining no broken bones. Jackson also suffered some pain from bruises and Robinson sustained a sprained ankle. The accident is blamed on some drunken negroes who pulled the bell rope. The motorman stopped the car and the next one following crashed into it. Some confusion followed but no one was seriously hurt.

NEAR EPIDEMIC

Typhoid Fever Epidemic in the Cumberland Valley.

With twenty-one cases of typhoid fever now in existence between Carlisle and Shippensburg, seven of these having been reported in the town of Shippensburg itself, the State Department of Health has now taken the matter in charge and Dr. Harvey B. Basehore, county medical inspector, made an inspection tour of the infected district Friday.

Dr. Basehore thinks the epidemic originated from the drinking of well water that was polluted with typhoid germs. In about four or five doubtful cases, blood tests are now being made, samples of blood having been sent to Philadelphia for examination. It is thought, however, that these are mild forms of typhoid fever.

SKATING RINK MATTER AGAIN

John Walter Files Answer to Action Brought against his Proposed Skating Rink on Hanover Street. For Other Purposes also.

John F. Walter, through his attorney, J. L. Williams Esq., has filed an answer to the bill in equity filed some weeks ago by C. S. Reaser and W. M. Henry to prevent the use of his "Garden Auditorium" now in course of erection on Hanover street, for roller skating purposes.

The plaintiffs alleged originally as one reason for bringing their action against Mr. Walter's project that the street "is a residential street only and is free from disturbing noises and annoyances from trades, occupations, business or nuisances". Mr. Walter's answer denies this saying that the portion of Hanover street in question and the "vicinity thereabouts has not been and is not now a residential street only, but the same has been and is now agricultural land and used for farming and trucking purposes."

Mr. Walter further states that, at the time the original bill was filed by John D. Keith and George J. Benner, attorneys for the plaintiffs, the defendant had planned, arranged, and contracted for the material and work required in the erection and construction of the building and that he now intends to complete the same metal and frame building of dimensions 58 x 130 feet.

This building, says Mr. Walter's answer, is so planned and will be constructed to have a seating capacity of fifteen hundred people and will be provided with suitable movable chairs or seats, with permanent seating accommodations for about 250 people, and is intended for and will be used as a convention hall for meetings, conventions, assemblies, reunions such as frequently come to and are held on the battlefield of Gettysburg.

It was and is the intention of the defendant, he continues, to call said building the "Garden Auditorium" and when not used as above mentioned, to hold therein fairs, festivals, food sales, etc. either under his own direction or that of churches, societies etc. It also was and is the intention of this defendant to provide said building with a suitable wooden floor and, when the building is not used as above set forth, to hold therein roller skating and dances, open to the public under proper restrictions and supervision.

SLOWLY RECOVERING

Baltimore Lad, Hurt at Gardners Factory, Slowly Recovering.

John Glielener, the fourteen year old Baltimore lad, who was seriously hurt Friday afternoon at the Musselman Canning Company plant at Gardners, when he was caught in a pulley, is now recovering slowly in the Harrisburg Hospital. He had recovered sufficient strength Saturday night to allow the amputation of the injured arm. His other injuries are of such character, however, that he will likely be a patient at the institution for some time.

LARGE NUMBER AT OPENING

Parochial Schools Opened for Winter's Work. Mass Celebrated and Address by Father Boyle. Expect to Add New Courses.

The parochial schools opened this morning in all grades with an increased attendance and several post-graduate students who received their diplomas last year and are now taking up advanced studies.

The total enrollment of 120 is divided as follows: High School, Sister Adele teacher, 18; Fifth and Sixth Grades, Sister Mary teacher, 26; Third and Fourth Grades, Sister De Sales teacher, 35; Primary, Sister Alberta teacher, 41. Sister De Sales takes the place of Sister Zohe who was removed to Albany, New York. The other three teachers have been with the schools for some years.

Father Boyle celebrated mass for all the children in St. Francis Xavier church this morning and after the service addressed the pupils on the value of education and the necessity of co-operation with the teachers in order to get the best out of the study of the coming months. Upon the conclusion of his address all marched to the school building adjoining and the work of enrollment was at once taken up.

During this school year it is the intention to establish a commercial course in the Catholic High School, including stenography with typewriting and book-keeping. A practical education, fitting the scholars to take up office work immediately upon graduation is the hope of those managing the local parochial schools and the children attending will get a feature of school work not hitherto afforded in St. Francis Xavier's Institute.

ALL GET JOBS

All Graduates at Mont Alto Busy on State Forestry Lands.

The eleven graduates of the State's Forestry Academy at Mont Alto this year have all been given places in the Pennsylvania forestry service and are engaged in practical work in supervising some of the 990,000 acres of Father Penn's domain and in preventing fires. Virtually all of the men engaged in the forestry service are graduates of its own academy and it is expected that within a short time the reserves will commence to show a considerable revenue, thanks to the scientific manner in which the trees are being handled and the land reforested. Hundreds of thousands of trees are being set out each year and the timber cut is finding a ready sale.

FRUITLESS WAIT

Local Guides Have Long and Fruitless Wait for Train.

Gettysburg's guides and hackmen waited at the Reading station from early Sunday morning until almost one o'clock in the afternoon for an excursion which brought about 150 people, most of whom refused to take teams when they did arrive. This morning the roadway where the teams stood presented a sorry spectacle, deep holes showing where the impatient horses had pawed up the street, and stones being scattered in all directions.

LONG SEARCH FINDS OWNER

Prof. Sowers Reaches Owner of Coat Found here in July. Living in Nebraska. Discovered Owner through his Tailor.

An echo of the battle anniversary celebration in July was heard this morning when Prof. J. Louis Sowers received a letter from A. Meyer, a veteran living in Adams, Nebraska. The letter established him as the owner of a coat which Prof. Sowers found here during the week of the anniversary. The Gettysburg citizen has been searching for its owner ever since he found the garment.

Mr. Meyer did not carry an identification card in his coat and there was no document of any sort to show the ownership. On the afternoon of July Third with a party of friends he stopped at Prof. Sowers' home on the Fairfield Road to get a drink of water and, while there, he hung his coat on the fence. He went away and returned later to get into the team which could not be taken out. Confederate avenue on account of traffic regulations. When he came back he forgot entirely about the coat and didn't think anything more of it until he was getting on his train. Then it was too late to make inquiry. Part of the journey home had to be made in coat-less style.

Prof. Sowers at once started to hunt the owner. A badge indicated that he was a member of the 25th Ohio Infantry but inquiry through Grand Army men failed to elicit any information. Finally Mr. Sowers saw the name of the tailor on the inside of the pocket. He communicated with him in far away Nebraska and the tailor in turn conferred with Nebraska's representative on the anniversary arrangements. He located Mr. Meyer and Prof. Sowers received a letter from the veteran describing the coat and sending a remittance in expression of his appreciation for the long search made to find the owner.

FIRE IN NEW OXFORD

Barn and Store Goods of Squire Straley Destroyed.

The barn of R. M. Straley, New Oxford, was totally destroyed by fire Sunday night about eleven o'clock. Mr. Straley states that he knows of no way that the blaze could have been started except by an incendiary and that is the general view held of the matter.

It was first discovered by Mrs. J. L. Sheetz and she gave the alarm, the fire company responding quickly and managing to confine the flames to the building in which the blaze had its origin. A tin roof aided them in their efforts. With the structure there burned a large quantity of goods which Mr. Straley had stored there for sale in his store. A buggy burned also. He estimates his loss on the barn at $600, with $350 insurance. His loss on personal property and store goods will reach several hundred dollars and on these he had no insurance.

FORMAL OPENING

College Opening this Year to be More Formal in Character.

Gettysburg College will open on Wednesday morning, September 10, for the scholastic year. It is the plan of President Granville and members of the faculty to make the opening more formal than in other years and to this end the hour has been changed from eight to nine o'clock. The ceremonies will be more elaborate and a general invitation is extended to the people of town to be present. Old students have started to return in large numbers and the new college boys are coming in on every train. The forecast made earlier in the summer of a Freshman class of over one hundred will in all probability be fulfilled.

TO STAY HOT

Falling Temperatures Likely in Northwest but No Relief here.

Cooler weather during the present week is promised to the central part of the country by the Weather Bureau, but no prospect is held out for relief in the East and South, and even higher temperature is indicated for the Northwest.

The eastward movement of a northwestern high pressure area, the weekly bulletin says, will be attended by lower temperature early in the week over the Central Plains States, the Missouri and upper Mississippi Valleys and the upper lake region.

In the East and South temperature changes during the week will not be decided, while in the Northwest it will be warmer during Monday and by the middle of the week temperature will be rising generally over the Central and Western portions of the country, followed by a fall over the Northwest toward the end of the week.

59 MILE HIKE

Dr. Fager Celebrates Birthday with Three Long Hikes.

With a 59-mile hike Dr. John H. Fager, Sr., of Harrisburg, who has many friends here, on Friday celebrated his fifty-ninth birthday. Dr. Fager covered the distance in three trips starting at 3 o'clock in the morning and ending at 7:50 o'clock in the evening. While on the trip he refrained from all food with the exception of several slices of bread and five glasses of plain soda water.

The three trips all had their centers in Harrisburg. The first was to Dauphin and return, 16 miles; the second to Sporting Hill and return, 11 miles, and the third around the Clark's Ferry road and return, 32 miles. Dr. Fager has been practicing for the hike for the past few weeks.

One good look at this Wooltex Motor Coat made us buy it

When the makers of Wooltex first showed us this coat we bought it.

We saw in it the distinctive and exclusive Wooltex style lines—recognized the influence of the Paris Wooltex Style Bureau in its design, and felt at once that some of our best trade would be glad we secured it for them.

As to the quality, that is all taken care of by the Wooltex guarantee of two full seasons' satisfactory wear.

It surprised us when we were told we could get the coat to sell to you at Twenty-five Dollars.

Joviality Out of Place.

"Your mistake was in misunderstanding your country," said Mr. Plowden, to a man and woman found dancing in the street and charged with disorderly conduct at Marylebone. "This is not a country where people can afford to be jovial. You must cultivate a spirit of melancholy if you want to be safe. Go away and be as sad as you can."—London Tit-Bits.

Belated Profession.

Considering the fact that human beings have always been perfectly lovely about showing other people how to do their work, the marvel is that the new profession of scientific management didn't break out sooner.—The Cynic, in American Magazine.

No Doubt About What He Meant.

Base—"I suppose you think I'm a fool?" Cass—"That's what troubles me. If your supposition is correct, then you are a mind-reader, and therefore you cannot be a fool; and yet—well, you understand."

Worry May Cause Death.

Medical science has recently explained how worry commits its murders. It has reached the conclusion that in many instances of what have been regarded as lunacy, and from which the victim finally dies, the case has simply been one of acute worry. Instead of the person dying of mental breakdown, he has worried himself to death.

Chinese Settlement in Paris.

Paris now has a Chinese settlement, which is both law-abiding and picturesque. The first families arrived a year ago, and now one hotel shelters fifty-three Chinese in five rooms. The men are mostly engaged in making toys, which the women and children sell throughout the city.

One Superstition Exploded.

Contrary to general belief, a man does not look for a white horse when he sees a red-haired girl. Instead, he continues to look at the girl until she disappears from view.

ENGINEER DID DOUBLE DUTY

So Testifies Driver of Engine In New Haven Wreck.

LITTLE SLEEP BETWEEN RUNS

Took Out His Own Run and That of a Sick Man for a Week—New Haven Road Will Spend $6,500,000 on Improvements.

New Haven, Sept. 8.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad is to be made the "safest railroad in the United States," Howard Elliott, its newly elected head, declared in a statement issued sequential to the closing day of the interstate commerce commission's investigation into the death dealing North Haven wreck of last Tuesday.

All sleeping cars will be of steel before Jan. 1 if the Pullman company can furnish them, and rush orders have been sent to other car builders who now have steel cars for the company under contract, calling for the expenditure of $6,500,000, according to the statement.

Orders also have been given, he said, to rush work on the new signal system to replace the old "banjo" type, charged with the responsibility for the North Haven wreck.

The sum of $365,000 for improvement of the system was voted, Elliott announced, by the road's executive committee.

Engineer August B. Miller, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, has been doing two men's work for a week when he ran his train by a signal at North Haven last Tuesday morning and wrecked the Bar Harbor wreck at a cost of twenty-one lives.

He so testified at the resumption of the federal hearing before Interstate Commerce Commissioner McChord. On the night before the wreck he slept only four hours, he said.

The commission's public inquiry has been completed, and Mr. McChord announced that his report would be ready in the near future.

Inspector Belnap had placed on the record a report on the Pennsylvania wreck at Tyone, Pa. This wreck was similar to the Wallingford disaster, but both trains were of steel cars. One train collided with the rear end of the first train while traveling from forty to forty-five miles an hour. No one was killed and the damage consisted of the crushing of the vestibules of the steel cars. The rear car was telescoped only fifteen feet.

Engineer Miller had told how he clapped on the airbrakes when he first saw the warning signal that was supposed to guard the train ahead, and how he put on the emergency brakes when he discerned the dim outline of the Bar Harbor express, he suddenly rose to his feet and said:

"May I make an explanation?"

Permitted to do so, he said: "I got home from my work Monday at 12:30 noon," he continued, "went to sleep, got up at 4:30 P. M. and went to Stamford to take my train to Springfield. I left there at 9 o'clock. When I got to Springfield I thought I was through for the night, for I understood that the man whose run I was doing expected to report that night. But he was still sick and did not show up, so they asked me to cover his job again. They were short on account of Labor day traffic. They thought I could do it, and this is where we are."

"Then for the week previous to this wreck you were doing two men's work," asked Chief Inspector Belnap, examiner for the commission.

"Yes, sir," said Miller. Frank C. Shanley, the young front end brakeman of the Bar Harbor train which was wrecked, testified that he went to work for the New Haven as a brakeman on May 1 last, although he was not twenty-one years old until June 24. He said that he was qualified to act as brakeman, although he had never been examined on this work.

U. S. to Investigate Signals

Washington, Sept. 8.—Appropriation of $25,000 for an investigation by the interstate commerce commission of block signal systems and automatic devices to prevent railroad collisions was incorporated in the urgent deficiency appropriation bill in the house by a vote of 34 to 30.

CAVALRY VETERANS' REUNION

Twentieth Penna.'s Meeting Shows Rapid Thinning of Ranks.

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—A strong example of the rapidity with which the various veteran organizations of the civil war are thinning out was furnished in this city, where the annual reunion of the Twentieth Pennsylvania Cavalry Association was held.

Of the 1600 men who made up the regiment during the war about 200 are alive today, and of these only six were present at the reunion.

Fatally Gored by Mad Bull.

Lewistown, Pa., Sept. 8.—Fred Webster, sixty-two, of Farmington, was probably fatally gored by a mad bull at the state fair grounds. He was removed to the C. M. G. hospital. Little hope is held out for his recovery. Earlier in the day the same bull attacked and seriously injured its owner.

LAST SHOVEL OF EARTH FROM CULEBRA CUT

Big Trench in Panama Canal Is Now Finished.

Panama, Sept. 8.—The last shovel of earth was dug from the Culebra cut at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. All the tracks and equipment will be removed on Tuesday and the flooding of the cut begun.

It was originally intended that all steam shovel operations on the Culebra cut proper should cease on Sept. 15, and by Oct. 15 all the equipment, including thirty-six miles of track, must be out of the nine-mile channel between Gamboa dike and the Pedro Miguel locks. These dates have evidently been advanced.

On Aug. 1 there remained to be removed 993,900 cubic yards inside the theoretical canal prism, and it was estimated that two-thirds of this would be taken out by Sept. 15.

The work on the canal is progressing rapidly. On Aug. 31 the last barrier at the Pacific end of the canal was blown up by dynamite, and that same day several dredges passed through the opening. Work was begun on the last barrier of the Atlantic channel two days later, and when this has been completed ships will be able to navigate the locks at both ends.

JOHN BASSETT MOORE

White House Denies He Was About to Resign

© 1913, by American Press Association.

The White House denied emphatically that John Bassett Moore, counselor of the state department and regarded as America's foremost authority on international law and diplomatic precedents, is to resign. The president said there was no truth in the report. The rumors of his resignation arose when he left Washington for a month's vacation. Mr. Moore served the Taft administration as counselor, and it was only after President Wilson brought the strongest kind of personal pressure to bear did he consent to accept the post under the new regime.

WHITE HOUSE WEDDING NOV. 25

Jessie Wilson to Wed Francis Sayre on That Date.

Windsor, Vt., Sept. 8.—The long-looked-for date of the wedding of Francis Sayre and Miss Jessie Wilson has been announced by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, through her secretary, Isabella Hagman.

The date will be Tuesday, Nov. 25, and the ceremony will take place in the White House in Washington.

Mr. Sayre has been at the summer White House in Cornish, N. H., for the past week, and is probably doing whatever he can to assist in the plans for the wedding day. He and Jessie Wilson are now quite familiar personages upon the streets of the little village of Windsor and likewise upon the country roads leading in all directions from Cornish. They ride in the electric automobile on some trips, and upon others are seen together in a cute little parasol rig, which is about as unique a turnout as one would find anywhere, either in the romance of Europe or America.

Miss Wilson is fast recovering from her recent accident, caused by falling from a horse while riding.

TWO DROWN IN DELAWARE

Another Nearly Loses Life When Craft Overturns

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—John Bartell, twenty-three years old, of Audubon, N. J., and William Waller, twenty-three years old, of Second and Moore streets, this city, were drowned in the back channel of the Delaware river near Prospect Park during the storm which swept the river.

Bert Simmons, twenty-one years old, of 2252 Dover street, Philadelphia, was saved when the sailboat in which the young men were sailing turned turtle and sunk.

The three young men left the city for a sail down the river. Seeing the storm approaching, they left the river and ran into a back channel, which is located at the end of League Island, and affords a safe harbor.

As the boat was steering for the channel the storm broke with great force, and the small boat was tossed about in the rough water until it was about to be overturned. The three young men were unable to climb upon it, as the river was lashed into waves.

AUTUMN ARBOR DAY

Autumn Arbor Day will be Friday, October 24.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Nathan C. Schaeffer has issued the annual Arbor Day proclamation designating Friday, October 24, as "Autumn Arbor Day."

In his proclamation Dr. Schaeffer gives a quotation from Van Dyke on planting of trees and says:

"Trees are our friends. They protect us from the glare of the sun in summer and shield us from the chilly blasts of winter. They beautify the streets of our towns and cities. They adorn the greenward of our homes. They clothe our hillsides and husband our supply of water. Noble trees do not attain their growth in a day. The fullness of years is theirs. From an acorn to a mighty oak is more than the span of a human life. Many of the trees most highly prized by us are due to the foresight of our fathers and forefathers. They have planted that we might be benefited. Let us pass on to those who follow that which has been handed down to us. With the selfishness of our forebearers, let us plant the forest, the shade and the fruit trees."

"In this spirit and in accordance with established custom, Friday, October 24, is hereby designated and set aside as Autumn Arbor Day. It is earnestly urged that the teachers and pupils in all public and private schools of this commonwealth, with an appreciation of the needs and comforts of the coming generations, will observe this day by the planting of trees and with suitable exercises."

INSPIRED BY CHARGER

RIDERLESS HORSE SHAMED THE RETREATING SOLDIERS.

Faithful White Stallion, After the Colonel Had Fallen, Went On, as He Would Have, to Victory or Death.

Three hundred yards from the spitting trenches a nickel jacketed bullet caught the colonel squarely in the forehead, and he lurched from the saddle. A hoarse cry went up from the thundering regiment, and the white horse plunged wildly, one of his rider's feet still in the stirrup. The trenches broke into yells and their fire swelled louder. The cuirassiers slowed; their long lines wavered, hesitated, and broke.

From the other side of the river, the infantry, struggling vainly under the pitiless mauling of the enemy's fire, saw the charge through the smoke of the guns—saw the colonel's fall, and groaned when the splendid squadrons broke. The sweat, pouring down the general's face, felt cold as he wiped it away with a hand that trembled.

"They're gone!" he muttered brokenly. "And he's gone with them!" he added; for he had known the big blond colonel, and loved him as the men did. Stung by the fire which pelted their backs as unrelentingly as it had their faces, the broken masses of the cavalry rolled back over the ground already heaped with their dead. Suddenly, from the scattered fringe of horsemen cloaking the rear of the fleeing cloud, broke the big white stallion, the heavy empty saddle showing pitifully against his white flank. An instant he stood, trembling; then his head went up, his mane shook out, and he started back toward the hostile trenches.

Across the river, the infantry gaped; the gunners stuck their heads from gullies and cheered; the bleeding, cowering infantry wiped their eyes. Something seemed to catch in the general's throat, and something streamed down his cheek that was not sweat. The white horse had gone twenty yards when a cuirassier officer flung his long blade high in the air. The wavering columns slowed, halting up and down like rocking horses as the men sawed on the bits. Above the din of the firing sounded the cracked din of the cavalry trumpets. A single shining figure turned and sped across the empty saddle, a little group followed, a like veered round clumsily and started back, then the whole hurrying mass pulled about and went back through the heaped-up bodies on the ground, the white horse with the empty saddle galloping steadily before them.

A hoarse yell went up from every heavy-eyed, broken-spirited infantryman in the long lines. The two pummeled columns broke into little dribbles of men, who ran down to the shore, plunged into the current and started splashing for the opposite bank without an apparent thought of the hail of metal slashing through them. The gunners jumped from their shelter and jammed the shells into the cold breeches of the guns. The supporting column awoke, and its front was suddenly lighted by a thousand flashes of fire.—Donald Hamilton in McClure's Magazine.

NEARLY READY

Will Furnish Passage for Fish Up the Susquehanna.

Work on the new fishway at the power dam of the McCalls Ferry is progressing rapidly, and State Fish Commissioner N. R. Buller says that he expects it to be completed by the end of the month.

The fishway is being constructed on the York county side of the river, sloping from the face of the dam down the stream. It is made to resemble the natural bed of the river. The new fishway will furnish an unimpeded passage for fish up the Susquehanna River.

Many fishermen living above the dam are rejoicing over the prospects for a big shad season next spring. Many of these fishermen had been deprived of a livelihood because of the construction of the McCalls Ferry power dam.

Talking Pictures Coming to Gettysburg for Second Appearance.

Another Edison triumph, the wonderful Talking Pictures will be produced at Walter's Theatre, Monday, September 8. In witnessing a performance of these truly marvelous pictures one forgets that it is only a picture speaking, really not even a picture, but a thing of light and shadows, more unstable than water and less material than air. When it is all over one feels that he has been in another world. Skepticism gives way to amazement and then to enthusiastic pleasure, the illusion being so perfect that the performers in the pictures themselves are very frequently applauded.—advertisement

TRAIN AND AUTO IN FATAL CRASH

Two Men Killed at Crossing Near Washington.

WILL OBSCURE THE TRACKS

Alexandria, Va., Grocer, William H. Peck, Roasted and Crushed Under Machine, While Ernest Zell, His Companion, Was Horribly Mangled.

Washington, Sept. 8.—William H. Peck, a prominent Alexandria, Va., grocerman, was roasted and crushed beneath his automobile.

Ernest Zell was horribly mangled and Forrest Crook, a flagman, was cut by flying glass when a Washington and Old Dominion train crashed into the Peck auto at Hume's Crossing, near Potomac.

The Dead.—William H. Peck about thirty-five years old, a prominent grocerman, and Ernest Zell, about thirty years old, an employee of the Alexandria glass factory.

The injured—Forrest Crook, flagman of train, cut about legs by flying glass. The train buried the automobile 100 feet beyond the crossing, pinning Peck beneath it, and sending Zell's body sixty-five feet from the crossing on the opposite side. At the same time the rear flagman was thrown twenty-five feet beyond the auto into a cornfield. He escaped with minor cuts in his legs.

Peck's body was crisp when trainmen and residents finally got it out under the burned and twisted wreckage of his four-passenger car.

Zell's body, crushed and cut almost beyond recognition, was gathered up on the opposite side of the track.

Peck and Zell were bound for Washington. Their car was running about fifteen miles an hour, and the train was going at about the same rate.

Hume's Crossing is a dangerous spot, where the view of auto drivers running northward is obscured by a hill, except directly at the tracks.

The engineer declares he blew his steam whistle. The train ran about 100 yards past the crossing after burying the automobile over an embankment 100 feet beyond where the crash occurred.

The machine was turned completely around and tipped over. Immediately there was an explosion, which soon had the entire body of the machine in flames.

Engineer Darley says he rushed his engine back as soon as he could stop it, and turned the hose and a fire extinguisher on the machine.

The bodies of Peck and Zell were ordered taken to DeMain's undertaking rooms after Coroner Yates had made a superficial examination and made certain of the identification.

Peck was well known in Alexandria. He was a widower, about thirty-five years old, and had two children and several brothers and sisters living in Alexandria. He was engaged in the grocery business, and was reputed as one of Alexandria's most successful merchants.

His companion, Ernest Zell, was at one time in his employ. Zell is married and about thirty years old. He leaves a wife and five children in Alexandria.

TOUCH ON LABOR LOBBY

Committee Shuts Off Manufacturer

Washington, Sept. 8.—James A. Emery, Washington counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, told the house lobby committee that the American Federation of Labor had been as active as the manufacturers in opposing congressmen whose views it did not approve.

He promised to produce evidence. John Kirby, Jr., once president of the Manufacturers, declared the methods of the federation and the I. W. W. were the same. When counsel for the federation objected, Kirby offered to produce evidence, but the committee shut off that line of inquiry.

D. L. Frawley, employed by the senate lobby committee to audit the books of the National Association of Manufacturers, testified to the committee that, between 1903 and 1913 the association paid $245,000 to Martin M. Mulhall for legislative and campaign work. The audit confirmed in many particulars Mulhall's testimony to the committee.

The association spent more than $2,000,000 in those ten years.

Accounts which Mulhall said had been designed by numbers on the association's books to hide identity of some of those drawing money for legislative or campaign work were investigated by Frawley, who reported he could not find the accounts ever had carried the names of the beneficiaries.

NEW TANGLE IN MEXICAN AFFAIRS

Now Denied Huerta Promised Not to Be Candidate.

Washington, Sept. 8.—A new complication has been brought into the Mexican situation by the statement given out in Mexico City by Nelson Shaugnessy, charge d'affaires of the American embassy in that city, denying that he had received any verbal or other assurances that Huerta would not be a candidate for an elective term in the presidency.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy's statement caused amazement in Washington, and was taken as evidence that the state department and the embassy in Mexico City are not working entirely in harmony or with complete understanding of the happenings in Washington and Mexico City.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy's statement now raises a question of fact between the embassy and the administration in Washington. Following the return of President Wilson to Washington last week it became known that the administration considered Huerta absolutely bound not to enter the race for the presidency in the elections to be held next month. It was stated in the highest official circles that not only did the administration consider that Huerta had given in the second Gamboa note assurances that he would not be a candidate for president, but also that verbal pledges "of the most positive and definite" character had been given Mr. O'Shaughnessy by Minister Gamboa.

Minister Gamboa promptly denied this statement made by the Washington administration. Mr. O'Shaughnessy's statement makes even more obvious what was becoming rather apparent, that the administration was taking a good deal for granted in its announcement with regard to Huerta. It is expected that the administration will have something to say to Mr. O'Shaughnessy as the result of his issuing a statement in conflict with the statements given out officially in Washington.

W. F. HAVEMEYER FOUND DEAD IN BED

Retired Sugar Man Succumbs to Attack of Angina Pectoris.

HIS HEALTH HAD BEEN GOOD

After Dining at Hotel Gotham, New York, With His Son and Daughter-in-Law, He Had Retired to His Home in His Usual Health.

New York, Sept. 8.—William F. Havemeyer, who was a member of Havemeyer Brothers, sugar refiners, at the time that concern was absorbed by the American Sugar Refining Company twenty-five years ago, was found dead in bed at 11 East Forty-fifth street in the apartments of his son-in-law, William R. Wilcox, former chairman of the public service commission, with whom he lived.

Death was ascribed to angina pectoris. Mr. Havemeyer had enjoyed comparatively good health, and his sudden taking away was a great shock to the members of his family and his friends.

Mr. Havemeyer was a son of Mayor William F. Havemeyer, of New York. He dined at the Hotel Gotham on Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Havemeyer, his son and daughter-in-law, and with Miss John J. Herick, the latter's mother. He returned home at 9 o'clock.

After retiring to his room he called in Arthur Clinton, a negro butler, who has been employed by the family for thirty years, and complained of a pain in the chest. He suggested that a capsaicum plaster might give him relief, and the butler helped him put one on. Then he went to bed.

At 2 o'clock in the morning the butler went to Mr. Havemeyer's room and tapped on the door. There was no response. He again knocked at 4 o'clock, and hearing nothing decided that Mr. Havemeyer was sleeping.

At nine o'clock in the morning Mrs. Wilcox, who was at her summer home in Locust Valley, telephoned the butler and asked how her father was feeling. The butler hurried to Mr. Havemeyer's room, where he found Mr. Havemeyer dead in his bed.

Badly frightened, he went back to the phone and managed to explain that Mr. Havemeyer had apparently been dead several hours. Mr. Wilcox sent word to Dr. Paul W. Kimball to go to the house and the butler called in another physician. Both doctors agreed as to the cause of death.

Mr. Havemeyer was born in New York on March 31, 1850. He was married in 1877 to Mrs. Josephine L. Harmon, a daughter of Alexander Harmon, of New York. Mrs. Havemeyer died fourteen years ago.

Mr. Havemeyer engaged in business of refining sugar with his brothers as a young man, but had no connection with that industry after his firm passed into the control of the American Sugar Refining Company. The Havemeyers now connected with that company are Mr. Havemeyer's cousins.

CALL BIG COLLIER FAILURE

Rumor Makes $1,200,000 Naval Vessel's Machinery Useless.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 8.—The elaborate coaling mechanism installed on the new navy collier Jupiter, built at Mare Island navy yard, is a failure, according to a rumor published here. A board of inquiry is said to have so reported to Washington, with the result that a board of naval experts has been ordered west to test the ship's equipment further.

It is stated that as now rigged the Jupiter would be useless for coaling warships at sea or while at anchor except in the most sheltered harbors. The Jupiter was expected to revolutionize coaling at sea and naval experts based great hopes upon her. She has a coal carrying capacity of 12,500 tons and a fuel oil capacity of 375,000 gallons. She was expected to load coal at the rate of 100 tons an hour, and with her duplex pumps to take in or pump out oil to another vessel at the rate of 120,000 gallons an hour.

The Jupiter was the first electrically driven seagoing vessel ever constructed and the largest ever laid down on the Pacific coast. She was launched at the Mare Island navy yard Aug. 24, 1912, and started her trials on Aug. 21. Congress appropriated $1,200,000 for her construction.

They come direct from West Virginia, the kind that always grow in value and demand the highest cash price. They are no bronchos, but the right kind to make heavy draft and fine drivers. It isn't the idea to make lots of money on the young stock but to get them into the country and I will have a chance to buy a great many back again when they grow up, as if I don't get young stock into the country there is no stock to buy, as our farmers don't grow them up as they did years ago. Farmers in need of the above stock will do well to attend this sale, as they all know that when I put them up I sell them. Your price is mine. No by bidding. All stock must be represented or no sale. I am going to buy the best Cols, Cows, Bulls, Steers and Heifers for this sale that I have ever offered at public sale.

Sale to start at 1 o'clock P. M., rain or shine. Liberal credit will be given.

A MOTHER'S RUSE

By HELOISE BRAYTON

"Amy," said Mrs. Stringfellow to her daughter, "Walter Barnard has been paying attention to you now for six months. If you were engaged I presume that you would tell me. But I wish to know surely whether you are or are not."

"I am not," replied Amy dolefully.

"That evidently means that Walter hasn't spoken."

"I think he will, mamma."

"Not without being brought to the point."

"Mamma, you wouldn't wish me to tell him that I am expecting him to propose to me, would you?"

"Certainly not. That would not be the part of a girl. But a girl has her privileges, and one of them is to indicate to a young man paying her attention that she wishes him to discontinue doing so."

"But I don't."

The mother bit her lip, but said nothing more. Nevertheless she determined that since her daughter had not the spunk to bring her lover to a proposal she would make the attempt herself. To interfere in such a matter is always a great risk, and the lady realized that by doing so she might make a breach between herself and her daughter that might never be healed. But Mrs. Stringfellow was naturally diplomatic and determined that she would pursue a little game of her own which might mean a great deal or might mean nothing.

Not long after this little dialogue Mrs. Stringfellow arranged that Amy should go away on a visit. Amy objected, not being willing to leave Walter even for a day, though she did not see him oftener than once a week. But the mother prevailed, and Amy departed with fear and trembling that the man she wanted would during her absence fall into the toils of some other girl.

One day during Amy's absence Walter Barnard called upon her mother to pay his respects and ask how her daughter was enjoying herself. He was ushered into the library, where he usually visited with Amy. On the table lay a bill from a prominent dry goods store. It was so plainly exposed that the caller could not help seeing it, but he did not make himself acquainted with its contents till an unrolled package on a chair attracted his attention. It was white and of a delicate fabric. Near it was a box, in which some white gauzy substance so loosely rested that a part hung over the side. There was still another box with the cover on.

Barnard while waiting for Mrs. Stringfellow had nothing to occupy him, so his mind became fixed on these articles. He examined the fabric, and it seemed to him that there was about enough of it to make a dress. Then it occurred to him that the gauzy stuff might be intended for a bride's veil. Having gone thus far in his surmises, he was naturally curious to know what was in the covered box. He lifted the cover and saw that it was filled with orange blossoms.

Evidently some one was about to be married.

But who? There was only one single woman in the house, and that was Amy.

A terrible thought entered the young man's brain. Could it be possible that while he had been putting off his proposal some other man had come in and occupied the vacant place ahead of him? His heart seemed to stop beating. Perspiration stood out on his forehead.

He paced the floor till Mrs. Stringfellow came down. When she saw the dry goods she looked displeased, called a maid and directed her in a sharp tone to take them upstairs. Then she turned her attention to her visitor.

Barnard was too disconcerted to talk connectedly. He jumped from the warm weather to the news from abroad and from the news from abroad to the last bit of social gossip. Then he asked if Miss Stringfellow was enjoying her visit and was informed that she was having a delightful time. He asked when the young lady would return, and his hostess informed him that certain events that had happened since her departure would necessarily alter the time of her homecoming, but did not say whether it would be hastened or delayed.

Two or three times Barnard was on the verge of asking whether Amy was about to be married, but every time he balked. Once he got his question partly out, but Mrs. Stringfellow looked at him so coldly that he turned the question into something else. Finally he arose to go, stumbled against a chair's back and against an open door, dropped his hat and stepped on it, finally getting out in great confusion.

That night he slept only a few hours and in the morning took an early train for the place where Amy Stringfellow was visiting. She was much surprised at seeing him and waited for him to declare the object of his coming.

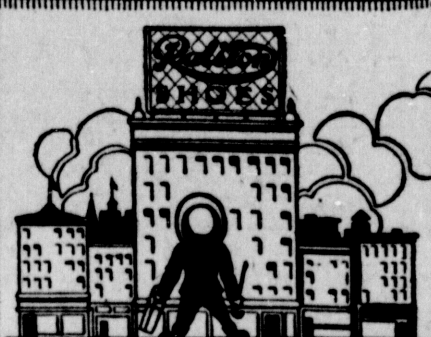

"Are you going to be married?" he asked in a tone to warrant that if she were he was ready to kill the groom.

"No. Why do you ask?"

There was an embarrassed silence for a few moments, when he spoke again.

"Well, then, I wish to put in my claim for you. I don't want any more scares like this."

When Amy returned to her home her mother confessed her ruse. Had it failed she could not have been convicted of it.

Homemade Cedar Chest.
Get a large pine packing box. Hinge on the lid and putty up the cracks if there are any, but it is better to get one without cracks. Purchase a bottle of cedar oil from the druggist and paint the inside of the box with this, being sure that the oil soaks into all crevices. Use the oil plentifully, and when thoroughly dry line the box with cambric. Cover the outside with any preferred material. The cedar oil will retain its odor for years, and is as much disliked by moths as the cedar wood itself.

Talleyrand and Josephine.
Talleyrand, the notorious French statesman, friend of Napoleon and ambassador at the English court, was designed for a military career, but an accident, when one year old, rendered him a cripple for life. His cunning cleverness, political penetration, adroit intrigues and ingenious subterfuges were vehemently opposed by the emperor's wife, Josephine, who energetically denounced him as a "cursed cripple."

Fell Away in Old Age.
A reversal of the rule that it is never too late to mend is found in the case of a centenarian of Hartford, Conn., who, according to the Watchman, lived up to the age of one hundred and since attaining that extraordinary climacteric has been arrested six times for violating the excise law.

A DANGEROUS MISTAKE

Gettysburg Mothers Should Not Neglect Kidney Weakness in Children. Many children have weak kidneys. An early warning is bed-wetting. Often followed by backache, headache, languor.
"Tis a mistake to neglect these troubles.
To blame the child for its own distress.
Seek to check the cause, Save the child from dangerous kidney ills.
Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for weak kidneys.
Gettysburg parents know their worth.
G. W. Bowers, carpenter, Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and have found that they do me more good than any other kidney remedy. One of the younger members of my family had weak kidneys and Doan's Kidney Pills cured her. I advise anyone who has kidney complaint to take this remedy."
If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Bowers had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
